

CONDITIONAL USES

GUIDE TO APPLYING FOR A CONDITIONAL USE PERMIT

Background

Zoning regulations strive to create consistency between the type and characteristics of uses within each district boundary. Certain land uses, however, may only be compatible within a zoning district under specific conditions. These “conditional uses” require a separate review and approval process to determine their appropriateness in a proposed location. The ability to obtain a conditional use permit creates some flexibility within the Unified Development Code while keeping a system of checks in place to protect surrounding property owners.

Definition

Conditional uses are those types of uses which, because of their nature, are dissimilar to the normal uses permitted within a given zoning district or uses that may negatively impact the health, safety, welfare, or property values of the immediate neighborhood. A list of conditional uses can be found in Unified Development Code Chapters 405 and 410. Conditional use permits may also be required for proposed signs exceeding district regulations.

Conditions

For a conditional use to be allowed within a zoning district, its design and intensity must comply with all of the applicable district regulations. The use should provide a benefit to the community and not detrimentally influence the neighborhood in which it is located or cause substantial injury to the value of surrounding property. The impacts of the use, including demands on public facilities and increased traffic volumes, must be reasonably accommodated by the area’s existing infrastructure.

Process

Conditional use permits must be reviewed by City staff and the Planning and Zoning Commission, and are ultimately granted by the Raymore City Council. Any person submitting an application for a conditional use permit must first contact Development Services Department staff, who will explain the review process and provide the necessary forms, checklists, and dates. Additionally, the applicant must meet with the City’s development review committee prior to making an application.

When the Development Services Department accepts an application, staff reviews it for completeness and compliance with applicable plans and ordinances. Staff will contact the applicant if additions or revisions to the application are necessary. Staff prepares a report containing its findings and a recommendation of approval or denial of the conditional use request. The application and staff report are submitted to the Planning and Zoning Commission for review and then to the City Council for final approval.

In addition to review by City staff and officials, the application is subject to comment from the general public. A public hearing is required at the Planning and Zoning Commission and City Council meetings where the application is presented.

Decision

The Planning and Zoning Commission is made up of nine members who are citizens and residents of the City of Raymore. The Commission meets on the first and third Tuesday of every month.

At the meeting, the Commission holds a hearing to allow the applicant, staff, and general public to present findings and testimony on the proposed conditional use. The Commission then makes “findings of fact” to determine whether the application is compatible with the criteria for approval of conditional uses. Based on those determinations, the Commission provides a recommendation of approval or disapproval to the City Council. The Commission may recommend approval of an application subject to conditions reasonably necessary to reduce or minimize any potentially injurious effect of the use upon other properties, to assure the continued adequacy of public facilities, or to realize the purpose and intent of the City’s Unified Development Code regulations.

City Council meetings are held on the second and fourth Monday of every month. The applicant, staff, and general public will again have the opportunity to present findings and testimony on the proposed conditional use. The City Council will consider staff and Planning and Zoning Commission recommendations, along with the public’s testimony, when making their decision to approve or deny the conditional use request. The City Council may place time limits or expiration dates on Conditional Use Permits as part of their approval. A bill, which requires two separate readings by the City Council, must be approved for the conditional use permit to be effective.
