

FINAL PLAT

GUIDE TO SUBDIVIDING PROPERTY

Background

A final plat is the second step in the process of subdividing land into separate parcels for future sale or lease. Once a preliminary plat has been approved by the City Council, the final plat process can begin. The final plat process is required to review the impacts of proposed development, confirm the adequate provision of public services, and ensure new development will conform to all applicable plans and regulations.

Definition

A final plat legally establishes the division of property into separate parcels or tracts. A final plat shows lot boundaries, street dedications, easements, and any other divisions of land. Final plats must be prepared by a registered surveyor or engineer and must include all requirements outlined in the Raymore Unified Development Code.

Conditions

Final plats are reviewed in relation to their consistency with the preliminary plat applications. Final plats must be found to be “substantially the same” as the approved preliminary plat. Additionally, the final plat must comply with all conditions, restrictions, and requirements of the City of Raymore Unified Development Code and all other applicable ordinances and design standards of the City. Finally, the application must comply with any conditions that may have been attached to the approval of the preliminary plat.

Process

After a preliminary plat has been approved, the applicant has one year to file an application for a final plat. If a phasing plan was submitted with the preliminary plat, one final plat application must be submitted every two years. If these deadlines are not met, preliminary plat approval becomes null and void. The applicant may request an extension of preliminary plat approval from the City Council.

A complete final plat application must be submitted to the Development Services Department before the filing deadline. When an application is accepted, staff reviews it for completeness and compliance with applicable plans and ordinances. Staff will contact the applicant if additions or revisions to the application are necessary. Staff prepares a report containing its findings and a recommendation of approval or denial of the final plat. A development agreement, stating all required improvements and development fees will be sent to the applicant for review and consent. The application, staff report, and development agreement are submitted to the Planning and Zoning Commission for review and then to the City Council for final approval.

Decision

Final plat applications must be reviewed by the City’s Planning and Zoning Commission. The Planning and Zoning Commission is made up of nine members who are citizens and residents of the City of Raymore. The Commission meets on the first and third Tuesday of every month. Final plats found by staff to be substantially the same as the preliminary plat are often placed on consent agenda. No public hearing is required for the review of a final plat.

The Commission retains the ability to ask the applicant and staff to present a report on the proposed final plat if they feel more information is needed to make the “findings of fact” necessary to determine whether the application meets the criteria for approval. Based on those determinations, the Commission provides a recommendation of approval or disapproval to the City Council. The Commission may recommend approval an application subject to conditions reasonably necessary for conformance with the required conclusions.

City Council meetings are held on the second and fourth Mondays of every month. No public hearing is required. The City Council considers staff and Planning and Zoning Commission recommendations when making their decision to approve or deny the final plat. A bill, requiring two readings by the City Council, must be passed for the final plat to be approved.

Next Steps

After a final plat has received approval from the City Council, it must be recorded with Cass County within one year of receiving final approval. Failure to record the plat within that time will render the plat null and void.

Within fifteen days of recording the final plat, three copies of the final plat (two paper and one mylar) must be submitted to the city. No building permits will be issued for the property until the required copies of the recorded final plat are submitted.

Building permits or certificates of occupancy will not be issued until all conditions of final plat approval are met and a recorded copy of the plat is available for examination by the Building Official. In addition, no building permits for residential dwelling units will be issued until all public improvements are installed and accepted by the City of Raymore. Certificates of Occupancy for commercial or industrial buildings will not be issued until all public improvements are installed and accepted by the City.
