

PLANNED UNIT DEVELOPMENT

GUIDE TO REZONING AND SUBDIVIDING FOR A PUD

Background

The purpose of a Planned Unit Development (PUD) District is to encourage the unified design of residential, commercial, industrial, and institutional uses in accordance with an approved comprehensive development plan. PUDs allow for greater flexibility in the design of buildings, yards, courts and circulation in exchange for the provision of platted common open space, amenities and design excellence.

Definition

In the City of Raymore, Planned Unit Developments comprise their own zoning district. The PUD district is a “floating zone” in which specific conditions are outlined in the zoning ordinance and applied to a carefully reviewed location through rezoning. The PUD District may be established exclusively for residential, commercial, or industrial development, or any combination of those development types. Any land use listed in Chapter 405 or 410 of the Raymore Unified Development Code may be permitted in a PUD, subject to review and approval.

Review and Approval Process

The PUD development process includes preliminary and final planning stages. The first stage encompasses the conventional rezoning and preliminary plat processes. The second stage parallels the process for final plat approval. Preliminary and final plans must be reviewed by City staff and the Planning and Zoning Commission and approved by the Raymore City Council. To obtain approval, the review and approval bodies must conclude that the PUD complies with all applicable ordinances in the Raymore City Code and complies with the City’s Growth Management Plan. Furthermore, the Commission and Council will examine the provision of open space within the development in relation to the proposed development density. The Commission and Council then must find that the PUD proposed is a unique development that could not be accomplished through the use of a conventional zoning district.

Preliminary Development Plan

Review

The first stage in the PUD process is rezoning to the PUD District, which requires the review and approval of a preliminary development plan. The preliminary development plan serves as the preliminary plat for the subdivision. Any person submitting an application for a PUD must contact Development Services Department staff, who will explain the process and provide the necessary application materials. In addition, the applicant must meet with the City’s Development Review Committee (DRC) to discuss the preliminary design and character of the proposed PUD. The DRC will inform the applicant of the requirements of the development regulations as they apply to the property to be developed and alert the applicant of potential problems with the location or design of the proposed PUD.

When the Development Services Department accepts a PUD application, staff reviews it for completeness and compliance with applicable plans and ordinances. Staff will contact the applicant if additions or revisions to the application are necessary. Staff prepares a report containing its findings and a recommendation of approval or denial of the request.

The application and staff report are submitted to the Planning and Zoning Commission for review and then to the City Council for final approval.

For residential developments, a meeting with the Parks and Recreation Board is required to determine how the applicant will fulfill the mandatory park land dedication requirement. The Board determines whether the requirement will be filled by land dedication, a fee in lieu of dedication, or both. Commercial and industrial properties are required to pay a fee based on the area of the property to be subdivided.

In addition to review by City staff and officials, the application is subject to comment from the general public. A “Good Neighbor” meeting is required to be held prior to the Planning and Zoning Commission meeting. The “Good Neighbor” meeting is meant to encourage dialogue early in the project planning process to pinpoint, discuss, and try to resolve neighborhood issues related to the impacts of the proposed rezoning. A notice will be sent to surrounding property owners informing them of the meeting. Additionally, a public hearing is required at the Planning and Zoning Commission and City Council meetings where the application is presented.

Approval

The preliminary development plan must be reviewed by the Planning and Zoning Commission. The Commission meets on the first and third Tuesday of every month. At the meeting, the Commission will allow the applicant and staff to present a report on the proposed development plan. A public hearing is also required. The Commission then makes “findings of fact” to determine whether the application meets the necessary criteria for a rezoning. Based on those determinations, the Commission provides a recommendation of approval or disapproval to the City Council. The Commission may recommend approval of an application subject to conditions reasonably necessary for conformance with the required conclusions.

City Council meetings are held on the second and fourth Monday of every month. The applicant and staff will again have the opportunity to present a report on the proposed PUD. A public hearing is required. The City Council will consider staff and Planning and Zoning Commission recommendations, along with the public’s input, when making their decision to approve or deny the request for a PUD. A resolution must be passed by the City Council for final approval of the preliminary development plan.

Final Development Plan

After a preliminary plan has been approved, the applicant must submit a final development plan for approval. The applicant has one year after the date of the approval of the preliminary development plan to file a final plan application. If a final plan application is not submitted within one year, the preliminary development plan approval expires. Final development plans may be presented in phases, provided a phasing plan was approved with the preliminary plan.

Final development plans will be reviewed and approved according to the procedure for final plats. For details on that process, please refer to the Final Plat application packet.

PLANNED UNIT DEVELOPMENT

DISTRICT DESIGN STANDARDS

Raymore Unified Development Code Section 415.060 (D)
Maintenance of Overall Density	The Planning and Zoning Commission and City Council may designate divisible geographic sections of the entire parcel to be developed as a unit, and may, in such a case, specify reasonable periods within which developments of such unit must be commenced. In the case of residential planned unit developments, the Planning and Zoning Commission may permit in each unit deviations from the number of dwelling units per acre established for the entire planned development, provided such deviation will be adjusted for in other sections of the development so that the number of dwelling units per acre authorized for the entire planned development is not increased.
Adequate Circulation System	a. The site must be accessible from public roads that are adequate to carry the traffic that will be imposed upon them by the proposed development, and the streets and driveways on the site of the proposed development must be adequate to serve the residents or occupants of the proposed development. b. A traffic study shall be submitted with the rezoning application in order to determine impacts of the proposed development and necessary improvements to the transportation system. The traffic study shall take into consideration the Transportation Plan of the City of Raymore. The Director of Public Works shall review the traffic study and make a recommendation to the Planning and Zoning Commission and City Council regarding necessary improvements to the transportation system.
Adequate Public Services	The development must not impose an undue burden upon public services and facilities, such as fire and police protection and public infrastructure. The development must make adequate provisions for resulting additional system demands imposed by the development upon roads and streets, water supply and storage, storm sewerage, sanitary sewerage and wastewater treatment. The developer must make arrangements and will furnish such performance bonds, escrow deposits or other guarantees as may be determined by the City to be reasonably required to assure consistency of the development with the City's Growth Management Plan.
Additional Buffering	When a commercial or industrial use within a Planned Unit Development district abuts a residential zoning district, a landscape buffer in compliance with UDC Section 430.080 (C) (1) shall be provided. If the residential zoning district and the commercial or industrial use are separated by a street right-of-way, a 10 foot wide landscaped buffer containing trees, shrubs and evergreens must be provided along the residential side of the right-of-way line. The applicant must provide for perpetual maintenance of the landscape buffer containing trees, shrubs and evergreens.
