

PRELIMINARY PLAT

GUIDE TO SUBDIVIDING PROPERTY

Background

A preliminary plat is the first stage in the process of subdividing land into separate parcels for future sale or lease. The preliminary plat process helps promote development that is consistent with the City of Raymore's plans and ordinances. The process also ensures the adequate provision of public services such as water, sewer, and police and fire protection and evaluates the impacts of new development on neighboring properties.

Definition

A preliminary plat is a proposal to legally subdivide a parcel of land into separate lots, each properly designed for a certain type of development. A preliminary plat acts as an agreement between the City and the subdivider as to the development's layout. Specific subdivision considerations include lot size, open space, density, street layout, access, floodplains, utilities, easements, and public improvements. The preliminary plat process is for subdividing property into five or more lots or for subdivisions that require the dedication of a public street or easement.

Conditions

Preliminary plat applications are reviewed for conformity with the design and engineering standards in the Raymore Unified Development Code, Growth Management Plan, and other applicable provisions of the policies and standards of the City. The proposed subdivision's impact on neighboring property will be evaluated. In addition, the projected impacts on public services and facilities will be considered, along with any proposed provisions to accommodate additional demands imposed on public infrastructure or services such as streets, water supply and storage, storm sewerage, sanitary sewerage, and wastewater treatment.

Process

When proposing to subdivide property in the City of Raymore, the applicant should contact Development Services Department staff, who will explain the review process and provide the necessary forms, checklists, and dates. Next, the applicant must schedule a meeting with the City's Development Review Committee. The applicant should bring a preliminary sketch plan demonstrating the ideas and intentions in the platting of the proposed subdivision to the meeting. Lastly, an application must be submitted to the Development Services Department before the filing deadline.

When the Development Services Department accepts a preliminary plat application, staff reviews it for completeness and compliance with applicable plans and ordinances. Staff will contact the applicant if additions or revisions to the application are necessary. Staff prepares a report containing its findings and a recommendation of approval or denial of the preliminary plat. The application and staff report are submitted to the Planning and Zoning Commission for review and then to the City Council for final approval.

For residential subdivisions, a meeting with the Parks and Recreation Board is required to determine how the applicant will fulfill the mandatory park land dedication requirement. The Board determines whether the requirement will be filled by land dedication, a fee in lieu of dedication, or both. Commercial and industrial properties are required to pay a fee based on the area of the property to be subdivided.

In addition to review by City staff and officials, the application is subject to comment from the general public. A “Good Neighbor” meeting is required to be held prior to the Planning and Zoning Commission meeting. The “Good Neighbor” meeting is meant to encourage dialogue early in the project planning process to pinpoint, discuss, and try to resolve neighborhood issues related to the impacts of the proposed preliminary plat. A notice will be sent to surrounding property owners informing them of the meeting. Additionally, a public hearing is required at the Planning and Zoning Commission and City Council meetings where the application is presented.

Decision

The Planning and Zoning Commission is made up of nine members who are citizens and residents of the City of Raymore. The Commission meets on the first and third Tuesday of every month. At the meeting, the Commission will allow the applicant and staff to present a report on the proposed preliminary plat. A public hearing is also required. The Commission then makes “findings of fact” to determine whether the application meets the criteria for approval of preliminary plats. Based on those determinations, the Commission provides a recommendation of approval or disapproval to the City Council. The Commission may recommend approval of an application subject to conditions reasonably necessary for conformance with the required conclusions.

City Council meetings are held on the second and fourth Mondays of every month. The applicant and staff will again have the opportunity to present a report on the proposed preliminary plat. A public hearing is required. The City Council will consider staff and

Planning and Zoning Commission recommendations, along with the public’s testimony, when making their decision to approve or deny the preliminary plat. A resolution must be passed for final preliminary plat approval.

Next Steps

When a preliminary plat has been approved by the City Council, the applicant may prepare an application for a final plat. The applicant has one year from the date of preliminary plat approval to file an application for a final plat. If the applicant does not file a final plat application within a years time, the preliminary plat approval is considered expired and the process must be repeated.
