Brief Description of Artwork for Exhibit (include medium, subject area, etc.)

Acrylic paintings of vivid color palettes and powerful brush strokes that explode off the canvas with a raw intensity, abruptly confronting the viewer with iconically framed subjects and story lines. Stories of faith and personal life experiences brought to life through the use of animals and fantastic creatures whom take the lead role in telling the story. A narrative that is constructed with inspiration stemming from the urgency of Impressionism painting, the flat and graphic nature of Japanese wood block prints and the lines and structure of modern graffiti and ancient hieroglyphs.

Please Review the Exhibit Space Layout and indicate how many pieces your exhibit will contain: 15 pieces

Submission Instructions:

Submit this completed application, five photographs of samples of the pieces that would be included in the exhibit, and a one-page biography to:

Spencer Chapin is an artist from Lee's Summit, Missouri currently working as a Graphic Design Coordinator in Kansas City. Stepping outside of the realm of design he creates acrylic paintings under the moniker of "Nalubuff". This realm is spattered in vivid color palettes and powerful brush strokes that explode off the canvas with a raw intensity, abruptly confronting the viewer with iconically framed subjects and story lines. Stories of faith and personal life experiences brought to life through the use of animals and fantastic creatures whom take the lead role in telling the story. A narrative that is constructed with inspiration stemming from the urgency of Impressionism painting, the flat and graphic nature of Japanese wood block prints and the lines and structure of modern graffiti and ancient hieroglyphs.
