Public Art March 7

1. Mike reported an upward trend in applications to show artwork in our available gallery spaces.
2. Photographer Kathleen Myers will be showing her work in Council Chambers beginning in May.
3. We discussed ways to promote school district art events through our social media and publications. While notices of school art events could be promoted through our social media, school events are a closed and secured ecosystem that might not lend itself to visitors other than students, teachers and family members. We decided to table this idea for now.
4. We got a preview of the Arts Survey results!
5. Mike reported that an annual city survey is being mailed to select Raymore citizens and will include four questions about arts in Raymore. (Up from zero questions last year!)
6. Mike approached the Nelson in regards to any outreach programs they have that might be available to the city. The Nelson responded that their outreach programs are limited by county(s). Raymore falls just outside of this zone. Mike is exploring alternative ideas like a shuttle-service for field trips to the Nelson—as well as other art-related shows and events in the Kansas City area.
7. We also got a preview of the color sketch by muralist JT Daniels! (This sketch is the west-side wall of the concession building.)
